How the Digital Transformation is Impacting Business Models and Capabilities

In this session, you will learn:

- Digitalisation and the phenomenon of digital transformation is fundamentally changing existing businesses and organisations. Executives in charge of leading digital transformation need to understand how digitalisation affects top management leadership and business models.
- New leaders will be asked to acquire a complete new set of core capabilities, use new tools and follow different leadership perspectives such as holism, virtuality and networked-based hubs.
- The future of the concept of digital leadership is something exciting for some and frightening for others, it is not just a change, it is a leadership revolution.
- During the presentation, we will share practical business cases on what are the capabilities and skills required to digitalise operations in a manufacturing environment.
- We will also unravel the complexity around some of the key strategic pillars of digitalisation giving practical examples on what they actually mean and their impact on the daily business.
